Runway Re-Designation at Kerry Airport (EIKY) Due to Magnetic Variation1. Introduction:

Due to the gradual shift in earth's magnetic field, the magnetic variation at Kerry Airport (EIKY) has changed sufficiently to require a runway re-designation. This change ensures continued alignment between runway magnetic headings and their numerical identifiers

Details of Change: Effective 29th October 2026

EIKY runway designation will change to RWY 07/25:

Current Runway	New Designation	Magnetic Bearing
Runway 08/26	Runway 07/25	073° /253°

All associated aerodrome signage and markings will be updated accordingly. The change will be reflected in the Aeronautical Information Publication (AIP) Ireland, EIKY AD 2 Section.

2. Impacted Documentation:

The following publications and systems will be updated:

- AIP Ireland (EIKY AD 2 Section)
- Instrument Approach Charts and Procedures
- ATS and MET Broadcasts
- Flight Planning and Navigation Databases
- NOTAM
- Aerodrome Charts

3. Action Required:

Aircraft operators, flight crews and aeronautical data users are advised to:

- Update navigation databases and flight planning systems
- Brief crews on the new runway designation
